Donna L. Milavetz, MD, Founder/CEO, OnSite Care

Donna L. Milavetz, MD, MPH is a Board Certified Internist with a Master's degree in Public Health Administration.

Dr. Milavetz went to medical school at the University of Arizona and did her Internal Medicine training at one of Harvard's teaching hospitals in Boston.

She received her Master's degree from the University of Minnesota.

Dr. Milavetz was recruited to the Mayo Clinic, Rochester to help start the Women's Heart Clinic and after moving to Utah with her husband was the consultant on and the Medical Director of the IHC Women's Health Center in Ogden, UT.

Dr. Milavetz decided in 2006 to look at healthcare for Corporate America in a different manner and started her own company, OnSite Care, to not only improve health outcomes for employees, but to lower healthcare costs for employers.

Dr. Milavetz has a unique model of providing primary care in the corporate workplace that creates the "medical home" for employees, and has proven success in lowering premium and out of pocket costs for employers and employees. She has partnered with local health systems and providers to create additional vendor contracts at a substantially reduced cost that further drives down the cost of healthcare. Lastly, through looking at health summary information from a clinical perspective, OnSite Care can tailor wellness and disease management for a company's members to maximize ROI for wellness based programs further reducing downstream healthcare costs.
